PRESIDENT'S SPEECH DELIVERED FROM FAIR STAND

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 19.—President Roosevelt and his party arrived here early this morning, and were received at the station by an enormous and enthusiastic crowd, that wildly cheered when the president appeared on the platform of his private car. He was formally received by the mayor of the city, a number of city and county was formaly received by the mayor of about half past eleven and were greeted all along the toute and upon their arrival by large crowds which gave the president an enthusiastic welcome, the gates the president was met the officials of the fair association, who presented him with a hand-somely wrought key of gold, in commemoration of his visit to the fair. After a short walk through the grounds, the president was escorted to the grand stand, where he addressed an appreciative audience of nearly 40,000 persons. Immediately after the conclusion of his address, the president and his party returned to the station, and at 1 o'clock the special train left the city for Durham, Greensoro and High Point.

PRESIDENT DELIVERS PRACTICAL ADDRESS

I am glad at the capital of North Carolina to have a chance to greet so many of the sons and daughters of your great state. North Carolina's part in our history has ever been high, and honorable. It was in North Carolina that the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence foreshadowed the course taken in a few short months by the representatives of the thirteen colonies assembled in Philadelphia. North Carolina can rightfully say that she pointed us the way which led to the formation of the new nation. In the Revolution she did many memorable deeds, and the battle

President Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt and the members of his party were the guests of the mayor and the citizens in general at breakfast, and were then taken to the fair grounds in carriages. They reached the grounds about half past eleven and were greet-

The position of honor in your parade today is held by the Confederate veterans. They by their deeds reflect credit uopn their descendants and upon all Americans, both because they did their duty in war and because they did their duty in peace. Now if the young men, their zons, will not only prove that they possess the same power of fealty to an ideal, but will also show the efficiency in the ranks of industrial life that their fathers, the Confederate veterans showed that they possessed in the ranks of war, the industrial future of this great and typically American commonwealth is assured. f war, the industrial future of this reat and typically American common cauth is assured. When this government was founded commerce was carried on by essentially the same instruments that had been in use not only among civilized, but among barbarian, nations, ever since history dawned; that is, by wheeled vehicles frawn by animals, by pack trains, and by sailing ships and rowboats. On land this meant that commerce went in slow, cumberous, and expensive fashion over highways could not compete with water transportation, if such was feasible between the connecting points.

All this has been changed by the development of the railroads. Save on the ocean or on lakes so large as to be practically inland seas, transport by water has wholly lost its old position of superiority over transport by land, while instead of the old highways open Transportation and Communication

But I congratulate you not only upon your past, but upon your present I congratulate you upon the Great Industrial Activity shown in your commonwealth, an industrial activity which, to mention but one thing, has placed this state second only to one other in the number of its factories. You are showing in south. But I congression your past, but upon your past, but upon your past, but upon your commonwealth, an industrial activity which, to mention but one thing, has placed this state second only to one other in the number of its textile factories.
